MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1867.

Mr. Stevens' Plan of Reconstruction. As THE bill introduced by Mr. Stevens for the reconstruction of the late Rebel States promises to be the important measure of the session, it may be well worth while to devote some little attention to its provisions.

The preamble asserts that the eleven States which lately formed the Government called the "Confederate States of America" have forfeited all their rights under the Constitution, and can be reinstated in the same only through the action of Congress. This embraces essentially the ground upon which President Johnson based his right to reconstruct the State Governments of the South. His form of expression was that the Rebellion had "destroyed all civil government" at the South. Both Congress and the President agree, therefore, that the Rebellion necessitated the creation of new State organizations in the districts of country originally occupied by the loyal State Governments of the South, and subsequently usurped by the unconstitutional and revolutionary Rebel State organizations. This is a point of great importance, and is the key really to the whole struggle. It confines the question wholly to the power and right of the President, solely and on his own motion, to organize States and give them a constitutional status in the Union. It is not at all a question as to the effect of the Rebellion upon the State organizations of the South, for both the President and Congress agree that its effect was to destroy those organizations.

This effectually does away with all the metaphysical absurdities of "once a State always a State," the acts of secession having "no effect," and all that kind of talk. Both parties start out from an acknowledged fact, viz., the overthrow of all civil governmentthe abolition of all State organizations-by the Rebellion. The simple question remains, What department of the Government is authorized to reconstruct the South? Mr. Stevens' bill asserts in its preamble that the work of reconstruction belongs to Congress; and it goes on to prescribe that the eleven States lately in rebellion, except Tennessee, may form valid State Governments in a certain manner.

But here we are at the outset met with the organizations which the President has created in the late Rebel States. What shall be done with them? Shall they be overthrown, and no organizations at all be left, for the time being, in these States? Mr. Stevens' bill proposes no such thing. It simply recognizes the facts in regard to these organizations, viz., that they were illegally formed in the midst of martial law; that in many instances their constitutions were adopted under duress, and not submitted to the people for ratification; but that they are de facto governments, and are now to be by Congress legalized as valid for municipal purposes until they shall be duly altered.

The bill next provides for the organization of loyal State Governments, to take the place of these temporary municipal organizations created by the President. To this end elections are to be held in each of the ten unreconstructed States on the first Monday in May, 1867, for the choice of delegates to Constitut'onal Conventions, which are to assemble at the former capitals of the respective States on the first Monday in June, to trame Constitutions which shall be submitted to the loyal voters of the several States for their ratification or rejection. The officers for the conducting of these elections are to be appointed by a Board of three Commissioners in each State, which Board is to be appointed by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The returns of the elections are to be made to these Commissioners, who are to grant certificates of election to the members elected. So far the bill conforms to the best precedents for the formation of State Governments in this Union, and is altogether superior to the laws prescribed by President Johnson for the construction of his State Governments.

The next vital point that comes up is as to who are to be considered "the people" in the formation of these State organizations. Here Congress proposes to adhere firmly to the principle so uniformly maintained throughout the war, and by no one more conspicuously than by President Johnson himself-that the loyal people, and they alone, are to be considered as the people, for the purposes of State organization. Hence the bill provides that the right of voting and holding office shall be conferred upon all male citizens over twenty-one years of age, of one year's residence in the State and ten days in the election district, the term "citizen" to cover all persons (except Indians not taxed) born in the United States or duly naturalized. All persons who were of full age on the 4th day of March, 1861, and who have held office under the Government called the "Confederate States of America," or sworn allegiance to it, are declared to have forfeited their citizenship, and to have renounced their allegiance to the United States, and shall not be entitled to vote or hold office until five years after they shall have filed their intention or desire to be reinvested with citizenship, and shall swear allegleance to the United States, and renounce all allegiance to all other governments or pretended governments; provided, however, that such of the above as are otherwise qualified shall be allowed to vote and hold office upon taking an oath that, on the 4th of March, 1864, and at all times thereafter, they were opposed to the continuance of the Rebellion and the establishment of the Confederate Government, and desired the success of the United States, and would have complied with the requirements of the proclamation of the President of the United States, issued December 8, 1863, could they have safely done so. This is quite as liberal as those who have participated in the Rebellion could expect. It enforces no pains and penalties of confiscation or the like, but simply says to those who voluntarily renounced their allegiance to the United States, and adhered throughout the war to the fortunes of the so-called Confederacy, that they cannot be restored to political power without going through a probation and formalities analagous to those required of foreigners applying for citizenship in the United States.

There only remains to be guarded the republican character of the Governments to be framed; and this is done by the simple and just requirement that the Constitutions to be framed shall guarantee an equality of rights, privileges, and immunities to all citizens of the State. When the Constitutions shall have been presented to Congress, and app oved by that body, the States will then be declared entitled to all the rights and subject to all the obligations of States in the Union, and shall then, and not before, be entitled to representation in Congress.

This is the simple, just, and comprehensive plan proposed by Mr. Stevens for the reconstruction of the late Rebel States. We believe it to be both right and practicable; and we hope that Congress will stand by this measure as a finality in regard to the vexed problem which now agitates the nation.

The Veto Message. THE veto message of the President in regard to the Suffrage bill in the District of Columbia was expected, and therefore nobody is disappointed now that it makes its appearance. Its arguments are specious but utterly untenable, and are merely the old sophisms wherewith unjust power seeks to perpetuate itself. The constitutional right of Congress to regulate the matter of the suffrage in the District cannot be questioned. The only question that remains 18, whether the proposed exercise of power accords with justice and moral right.

The entire argument of the President on this point is, that we must not do this act of justice to the distranchised people of the District, because those who now have the power there are opposed to it.

But this style of reasoning cannot be allowed. No man is wronged because simple justice is done to his neighbor. It the present voting population of the District, or a majority of them, are opposed to an act of simple justice, that is no reason why the people of the United States, through their Representatives, should hesitate to do it.

The truth is, the wishes of this faction of the people of the District are entitled to but very little respect. They were mainly a disloyal set during the war, and had it been left to their vote to decide, would have chosen Jeff. Davis in preference to Abraham Lincoln.

The President's opposition to the extension of the suffrage is based upon the same grounds wherewith the autocrats of the Old World oppose the extension of the suffrage there. They are good arguments for a despotic government, but they are poor ones for a republic. There is a certain risk in allowing the people to vote, but it is a risk which in republican forms of government is assumed at the outset.

Ship News.

NEW YORK, January 7 .- Arrived, barques Gietesmund, from Hamburg; St. Andrew, from Buenos Ayres; brigs Lady Bird, from Old Harbor, Jamaica, and Minnehaha, from St. Martin. The steamship Gulf Stream, from Puerto Cabelle, Laguayra, St. Thomas, etc., in latitude 28, longitude 71 deg. 40 min., fell in with the wreck of a barque of about five hundred tons, abardoned apparently for a long time. She had no name on her stern, and her after-house and cabin were painted fle-h color, her window blinds green, and her tops and yards black. The sickness which has been prevailing at St. Thomas has abated.

The United States steamer Saco arrived at Laguayra on December 23.

-The town of Hanald, Hanover, has been the scene of a serious collision between the troops of the Prussian garrison and the young men of the neighborhood. It happened to be market, and the fight commenced in the morning and continued far into the day. The arrest of seventeen persons put an end to the riot. Several persons were wounded, the soldiers having made use of their side arms,

Four hundred children can be educated an entire year for the small sum of three thousand dollars, or seven dollars and flifty cents tack. On thousand colors have been subscribed by ten syntiemen in Philadeionia. Two thousand dollars are yet needed. Should this amount not be contributed the present month, the buildings and their furmiture with have to be sold and the pier children scattered over the city, with none to care for citizen as are the orighna children or men who fought and died in the Union army, and that lithis is the only means presented of showing our appreciation of their fathers' services, we think it ought not to be disregarded. The children have learned o love the Commission, and to pray for these who give it their support.

Pennsy realis and New Jersey are the only states, so far as we are informed, that have an organization for the purpose named, thus evincian a disposition to aid the South in clevating the poor white population to their rightful position. Should we succeed in prosecuting our labors mother year, we can thou retire ur der the confident assurance that the work will be carried forward by the city or State authorities.

The city of Athens have written us that they will assume the eau action of the poor of their town from the present time, and we expect similar good news from Macon.

They write us from Athens, 'the shool here under your patronage has done real service, and been a blessing to many, meeting a want and filling a vacuum made by levying no tax in 1855.

Atlanta is desumed to be one of the most flourishing clitics of the South. There is now, and, has been ever since the war closed, more enterprise in recovering from their great loss by fire, and in the establishing of rade than in any other part of this county. AMONG THE MANY RESTORATIVES which nature has supplied to relieve the afflictions of humanity, there is no more favorite one for a certain class of diseases than the "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry tree; but however valuable it is, its power to heal to soothe, to relieve, and to cure is enhanced tenfold by scientific and judicious combination with other lagredients, in themselves of equal worth. This happy minging exists to a remarkable degree in

"In the spring of 1858 I was most neverely afflicted with a hard, dry cough, with its usual accompaniments of nights wears, completely prostrating my nervous system, and producing such a debilitated state of health that, after trying medical aid to no purpose, I had given up all hopes of ever recovering, as had also my friends. At this stage of matters I was prevailed upon through the influence of a neighbor, to try Witar's dalam of Wild Cherry, and, he fore using two bottles, the effect was almost magical. My cough entirely left me, the night sweats desert of m, begonee more clated my depressed spirits, and som I had attained my would alrength and vicey. Thus has this Balssem, as has often been remarked by persons conversant with the above facts, I terrally snatched me from the yawning grave. PANCOAST & WARNOCK

STEINWAY & SONS' Grand Square and Upright Piano Fortes.

STEINWAY & SONS' direct special attention to their newly invented 'Upright' Pianos, with their 'Pat'nt Reservator' and double leon Frame. Patented June 5, 1866. This invention consists in providing the instrument (in addition to the iron frame in front of the soundboard) with an iron brace trame in the rear of it both frames being cas in the face, thereby imparing a soliday of construction and capacity of standing in tune never before attained in that class of instrument.

The soundboard is supported between the two frames by an apparatus regulating its tension as that the price of sound producing capacity is obtained and regulated to the nicest desirable point. The areat volume and exquisite quality of tone as well as clasticity and prompthess of action, of these new Upright Planos, have elicited the unqualified admiration of the musical protession and all who nave heard them.

BLASIUS BROTHERS condidently offer these beantiful matriments to the public and myle overy lover to make to all and areans the first these beantiful matriments to the public and myle overy lover. Grand Square and Upright Piano Fortes. BLASIUS BEGTHEES condends offer these beautiful matruments to the public and invite overy lover of music to call and examine them.

A very Finne is constructed with their Patent Agraffe Arrangement applied directly to the full Iron Frame. For sale only by BLASIUS BROTHERS. 12 27 im4p* No. 1006 CHESNUT Street.
